

Communication Matrix Training

About

The Communication Matrix is an assessment tool designed specifically for children who are communicating at early, pre-language levels. While many other assessment tools measure formal language development, the Matrix assesses early communication behaviors such as body movements, facial expressions, gestures, and other simple symbolic communication for children who are not using formal language. This is a two part training.

Part One will focus on the design and administration of the Matrix, including the online version. Part Two will focus on using the Matrix results to inform intervention and develop strategies to promote communication development. To fully understand how to move from assessment to intervention planning, attendance at both sessions is recommended.

Audience:

This workshop is intended for Michigan early intervention and school personnel who work with children who are DHH, ages 0-3. Those working with children ages 4-5 may also find this workshop helpful.
